

Consolidating into a modernized workspace

Projecting a progressive, elegant and timeless image

BENNETT JONES LLP

Occupying the top eight (8) floors of a prestigious downtown office tower, the client viewed the decision to renew their lease as an opportunity to modernize their offices to meet their operational and strategic business goals by completely renovating their outdated work environment which had been constructed twenty-five years prior.

State of the art technology was seamlessly integrated into the meeting room architecture and furnishings to support the firm's goal to increase efficiency and productivity by providing access to the necessary tools and technology.

On the reception/conference floor, a strong sense of architecture is developed through the introduction of portals which define areas and provide spatial definition and architectural interest, particularly in the long corridors. The corridor leading to the large boardrooms is developed as a "walk-through" library to display antique leather bound legal texts which introduces an element of nostalgia to the new environment.
